Record Stock Market Highs...But for How Long? (Video)

On the latest episode of Rise UP!, Grimes & Company's Kevin Grimes and Chris Deeley joined host Terri Kallsen to unpack the recent positive market trends and motivating factors behind it, as well as whether there are any developments on the horizon that should threaten it.

The trio also discussed the passing of the Genius Act, a new crypto law around stablecoins, and why it is important for the future of banking, as well as the latest news around inflation and tariffs. And in answering viewer emails, they debated whether 2025 is the year of metals, with gold hitting a record high and silver hitting a 14-year high. Watch the episode in its entirety below:
