Amanda Leach is a Client Service Manager at Grimes & Company, where she works closely with clients to provide support, education, and a positive service experience. Amanda is passionate about helping people navigate what can often be a stressful area of life and takes pride in making financial matters feel more approachable and manageable. She enjoys building relationships with clients and finding ways to make their experience with the firm as seamless as possible.

Amanda earned her bachelor's degree in Corporate Communications from Framingham State University in 2018. She began her career in financial services with TD Bank in Westborough, where she spent eight years in a variety of roles that helped shape her client-focused approach and deepen her understanding of the industry. Her experience across multiple positions provided a strong foundation in service, communication, and relationship management before she joined Grimes & Company.

Outside of work, Amanda enjoys spending time with her son and making the most of sunny days whenever she can. She is an avid reader and can often be found with her Kindle in hand.
